

As a frequent flier, I strongly object to the idea of allowing cellular phone usage on aircraft while in flight. It would be an invasion of what little privacy there is on planes, and would make it quite difficult to work on laptops, read, study for upcoming meetings, or even nap while on board.